PROBLEM

A boutique California law firm, which offers customized legal services to its clients throughout the world, was inundated with complex cases. The firm wanted to center its attention only on the most critical cases so it decided to outsource a portion of its workload to Lawstore's expert virtual attorneys.

SOLUTION

The firm has a large practice area mainly focusing on Anti- SLAPP, Arbitration, Business Litigation, Class Action, Commercial Transactions, EDD Claims and Audits, Employment, and Wage & Hour Matters. On a daily basis, it submits legal research and writing work (research memos, motions, briefs, pre-trial support documents and discovery) to a dedicated Lawstore team along with the deadline, instructions, and samples.

The Lawstore team designated to work on these cases consists of a U.S. Project Manager, a supervising offshore Lead Attorney and an offshore senior attorney. Once the senior attorney completes the final draft, the Lead Attorney performs a review. Next the U.S. Project Manager checks it to ensure consistency in quality, procures feedback from the client, and makes necessary changes. So far, the firm has used Lawstore's legal services to draft motions for summary judgment, meet and confer letters, motions to compel discovery responses, discovery requests for the superior court of California, research memoranda, discovery requests for the American Arbitration Association and more.

The Lawstore team provides the final product well within the due date, devoid of hassles for the client. Due to Lawstore's virtual legal drafting services, the boutique firm is able to dedicate their time and effort toward other lucrative and compelling tasks, be it legal, business development, or networking. The firm, repeatedly impressed by Lawstore's high quality work, quick turnaround time, and affordable pricing, has expressed its desire to continue its partnership with lawstore for many years ahead.
